"At the solicitations of several members of our county court he agreed that his name should be presented to the court for the office of Justice of the Peace. x x Five of the seven members on the bench voted for him, and his name, with that of another gentleman, was forwarded to the Governor, who refused to commission him, but after holding up the appointment for a considerable time, forwarded a commission to the other gentleman. x x x A report has reached here that Mr O G Cates, of your town, and our representative, Dr. R Fletcher, made charges of a very heinious nature against him, which induced his Excellency to disregard the communication of the county court. x x x I beg the favor of you to apply immediately at the Secretary's office and forward to me ~~all~~ copies of any and all communications, written or oral, that may have been made to his Excellency on the subject."

"In January, 1837, Dr Fletcher was nominated to Gov. Clark for sheriff of this county. Charges of the most heinious character are said to have been made against him, but he was not condemned unheard. Will you have the goodness to procure and forward me a copy of these charges, also, with the names of the signers."
